

The Senate Executive Committee discussed the question of the vacant ICC Chair position. Cindy Moyer has been termed out of the position. Unfortunately neither the Appointments and Elections Committee nor the Senate Executive Committee were able to find a candidate to fill this position. The Committee discussed how to proceed and identified two options.

A. We could leave the position vacant until a candidate is identified and an election can be held.

B. We could ask Cindy Moyer to continue in that role in an acting capacity until a candidate is identified and an election can be held.

We fully recognize the significance of this decision. Cindy Moyer has served two terms in the position of ICC Chair, and the Constitution establishes term limits on that and other faculty governance positions. However, given the importance of the work of the ICC, the Senate Executive felt that leaving the position vacant was not a viable option and undermines faculty ownership of the curriculum.

The faculty members of the Senate Executive therefore recommend that the Faculty Session of the University Senate permit Cindy Moyer to remain in the position while the Executive Committee continues to try to recruit an alternative chair to assume leadership of the ICC.
